

Project report – Research journal

Background

We have produced a journal for over a decade. With the retirement of the longstanding founder editor, a new editor was appointed but had to leave after one issue due to other commitments. The third editor have overseen a major relaunch.

Timing

August 2016

Location

UK/ Global

Partners

None

Methodology

The editors sought contributors from a range of internal and external sources and drawn from multiple disciplines.

Outputs

The relaunched journal was produced, with around twice the pagination of the previous issue.

Beneficiaries

The beneficiaries are humanity and other species, both now and in the future, who benefit from a reduced population size.

Impact

Measuring impact was not affordable.
